

The Role of Corpora in LSP Learning and Teaching

University of Leeds, July 23, 2012

(Venue: Parkinson Building B08: <http://www.leeds.ac.uk/campusmap>)

- | | |
|--------------------|--|
| 11:00–11:10 | Welcome and introduction to the workshop (James Wilson, University of Leeds) |
| 11:10–12:10 | “Corpus use in ESP: linking research and practice” (Alex Boulton, University of Lorraine) |
| 12:10–12:40 | “From corpus to materials creation: the ‘Writing for a Purpose’ project” (Hilary Nesi, University of Coventry) |
| 12:40–13:40 | Lunch |
| 13:40–14:10 | “Corpus resources for learning Arabic to understand the Quran” (Eric Atwell, University of Leeds) |
| 14:10–14:40 | “ReadingCorp: a corpus-based approach to teaching Russian for research” (James Wilson, University of Leeds) |
| 14:40–15:10 | “Textual investigation and LSP in the early days of corpus linguistics: the Nottingham German for Chemists course” (Chris Butler, University of Leeds) |
| 15:10–15:40 | “Corpus-based language education in the Chinese context” (Richard Xiao, Edge Hill University) |
| 15:40–16:00 | Break |
| 16:00–17:00 | A demonstration of the Leeds CTS interface: applications for LSP (Paul Stephenson, Serge Sharoff and James Wilson, University of Leeds) |

For details of how to reach the University from the train / bus stations or by car see http://www.leeds.ac.uk/info/20014/about/157/how_to_find_us/

If you have any further questions, please contact me at j.a.wilson@leeds.ac.uk