English Language

Description, Variation and Context

Edited by Jonathan Culpeper, Francis Katamba,
Paul Kerswill, Ruth Wodak and Tony McEnery

A definitive new textbook
in English language

* JUNE 2009 * 480pp * Paperback * 978-1-4039-4590-7 * £19.99 *

What is the English language like?

Why is it like that?

What do we need to know in order to study it?

'This volume proves that it is still possible to make a difference in a world flooded by introductory textbooks – giving the English language in all its fascinating richness centre stage!'

Professor Bernd Kortmann, Department of English, University of Freiburg, Germany

This wide ranging and research-led introductory textbook not only presents the English language from multiple perspectives, but provides the reader with the necessary grounding in linguistics to investigate it for themselves.

KEY FEATURES:

- * Each chapter includes 'Advances' boxes, designed to give readers a sense of controversies, debates and further research in the area, and 'Illustrations' boxes, which contain extended and additional examples to facilitate learning.
- * Covers both traditional topics and topics that have more recently come to prominence, notably concerning language use in context.
- * A research-led approach, making the latest developments in the field highly accessible for an undergraduate audience.
- * Written by a team of experts in diverse fields from the prestigious Lancaster University linguistics department in the UK.
