

English Medium Instruction: Global Views and Countries in Focus

Wednesday 4 November 2015

10am – 5pm

Department of Education

£25 (Students £15)

Institutions across the world are using English to teach academic subjects in a desire to internationalize. The symposium will present a global view of EMI with experts from different countries sharing their perspectives. Research from around the world will be shared in our “Countries in Focus” poster exhibition.

Confirmed Speakers:

- David Lasagabaster - University of the Basque Country
The impact of the spread of English medium instruction on Spanish universities
- Stephen Evans - Hong Kong Polytechnic University
English-medium instruction in Hong Kong: Analysing change and continuity in government policies and classroom practices since the handover
- Julie Dearden, Ernesto Macaro, Mustafa Akincioglu - EMI Oxford, University of Oxford
English Medium Instruction in Turkey: Can English teachers and subject lecturers cooperate?
- Kristina Hultgren - The Open University
English Medium Instruction in Scandinavian Higher Education: issues and controversies
- Andy Kirkpatrick - Griffiths University, Brisbane
Symposium Summary and Panel Plenary

Please enrol online

<http://www.education.ox.ac.uk/crdemi-oxford/english-medium-instruction-global-views-and-countries-in-focus/>

Lunch and refreshments will be provided at no extra charge thanks to the generous subsidy of Oxford University Press.

For further information:

Please contact julie.dearden@education.ox.ac.uk

