Educational Linguistics 2024: Language(s) from Childhood to Adult Age

We welcome you to the multidisciplinary conference Educational Linguistics 2024: Language(s) from Childhood to Adult Age at Linnaeus University in Kalmar, Sweden, 11–13 September 2024.

The field of educational linguistics encompasses, but is not limited to perspectives from linguistics, psychology, sociology, anthropology, and education. Researchers, both established and new to the field, are invited to join us.

The conference programme includes keynote speakers, oral presentations, poster sessions, and a panel discussion with the keynotes. The working language at the conference is English.

Abstracts

We invite interested researchers to submit abstracts for talks and poster presentations that connect to the conference's theme and focus on the intersection between language and education, such as how language(s) is used in educational contexts and how language(s) impacts teaching and learning processes.

More detailed information about the format can be found on the conference's website.

Keynotes

Francis M. Hult, Department of Education, University of Maryland, Baltimore County (UMBC)

Donna Coch, Department of Psychological and Brain Sciences, Dartmouth College

Eva Lindgren, Department of Language Studies, Umeå University
