

Asian Studies Program
The City College of the City University of New York
North Academic Center, Room 5/218
138th Street and Convent Avenue
New York, NY 10031

*Drew Hopkins, Ph.D.
Adjunct Professor of Asian Studies*

Korean Instructors

The Asian Studies Program and the Department of Foreign Languages & Literatures at the City College of New York seeks adjunct faculty to develop courses in Korean language and culture. The current need is for part-time, adjunct instructors, with the possibility of renewal. Part of a project to develop Korean instruction at the College, funded by a renewable grant from the Korea Society, it is envisioned that the position ultimately will lead to one or more tenure-track position(s).

Qualifications: ABD or Advanced Ph.D. Students, with native or near-native fluency in Korean, preferably with teaching experience and particularly experience in language instruction and familiarity with current techniques in language instruction.

Please send cover letter, c.v., teaching evaluations and supporting materials to:
Drew Hopkins, Asian Studies Program, The City College of New York, North Academic Center, Room 5/218, 138th Street & Convent Avenue, New York, NY 10031.