

CALL FOR PAPERS

SPECIAL ISSUE ON GENDER, LANGUAGE AND TRANSLATION

Special Issue's Editor:

Olga Castro (University of Vigo, Spain)

Expected date of publication: June 2011

Gender, Language and Translation

We invite contributions dealing with different aspects of gender and translation from the perspective of linguistics. Our primary aim is to explore why gender (in its various definitions) is relevant for translation.

This issue intends to provide a wide range of language coverage and of linguistic issues that may appeal to readers of diverse linguistic backgrounds. It also fosters discussion and debate about the implications of different definitions of gender and different approaches to analyzing the production and interpretation of texts and translations, with a focus on political or ideological issues. We welcome research on gender and translation employing a range of linguistic approaches which establishes interdisciplinary dialogue from a variety of perspectives, including anthropology, education, semiotics, pragmatics, philosophy, psychology, sociology, communication studies, queer studies, Critical Discourse Analysis, postcolonial studies or literary and cultural studies among many others.

Proposal submission deadline

If you are interested in contributing to this issue, please send your proposal by APRIL 30, 2009 to the guest editor Olga Castro (olgacastro@uvigo.es).

PROPOSALS for papers should include a title, an abstract of about 300 words, and your full contact details (including an e-mail). Please remember that the language of submission is normally but not necessarily English; also that the final version of the article should not exceed 10,000 words.

Acceptance of proposals

Contributors will be notified of acceptance of proposals by June 2009. Expected date of publication is June 2011.

Peer-review

All articles are peer reviewed, and following submission all papers will therefore be referred independently.

Contact details

Please contact the guest editor for questions regarding the scientific contents of the volume:

Olga Castro-Vázquez:
Departamento de Traducción e Lingüística
Universidade de Vigo
Campus As Lagoas Marcosende s/n
36210 Vigo (Pontevedra)
Tlf. +34 986812251
E-mail: olgacastro@uvigo.es