

Certificate program in Aboriginal Language Revitalization

Distance course, Fall 2011

LING 183A: Field Methods for Language Preservation and Revitalization: Documentation and Recording (1.5 units)

The Certificate Program in Aboriginal Language Revitalization, a partnership of the University of Victoria and the En'owkin Centre, is pleased to be offering the following distance online course, which is available for credit or non-credit participation, as an individual course or towards the Certificate in Aboriginal Language Revitalization.

This practical course explores the planning strategies, protocols, and methods of data collection, analysis, and organization that are appropriate for field activities associated with language preservation and revitalization. Through online learning and interactions, and hands-on activities, you will focus on:

- elicitation methodologies
- audio recording
- digital file management
- strategies for community involvement
- protocols
- ethical and intellectual property issues

(Formerly part of LING 183.)

Date: Monday, September 12, to Sunday, December 11, 2011; distance offering.

Registration deadline: August 15, 2011; late registrations accepted if space permits.

Fee: CAD$586.15, including a CAD$100 materials fee deposit. The tuition balance of CAD$486.15 is due on or before September 30, 2011.

REGISTER NOW: Email to calr@uvcs.uvic.ca or call 250-721-8457

For more information on the course technical requirements and registration, please visit our website: www.continuingstudies.uvic.ca/calr

Instructor: Dr. Strang Burton (left) has more than 25 years of post-secondary teaching experience, more than 15 years documenting local First Nations languages under the direction of community-run programs, and has taught language documentation to community groups from around Canada since 2006 for the CALR program, as well as SFU and NVIT, including work on five online Moodle courses for First Nations languages.

Comments on the course from past participants:

"Just magnificent." "Above and beyond. Excellent course and delivery."

"Excellent." "I will definitely use methods." "It will help me a great deal."

"This course gave me more energy in regards to my language." "It will help me document information where hopefully years from now it will be very beneficial to future generations."

Offered in partnership with Department of Linguistics, UVic and the En'owkin Centre