

NILI Summer Institute

Northwest Indian Language Institute

June 23rd

-to- July 3rd

2014

June 27th – 28th

Saturday Workshop

At Summer Institute 2014, participants will choose an applied teaching methods course based on their teaching needs; learn how to teach whole language (moving from words to sentences); create language materials; and learn more about their languages.

There will also be an extended youth program for high school students.

Course Offerings

Linguistics Classes

We offer three linguistic classes:

- Introduction to Native American Languages
- Intermediate Linguistics
- Introduction to Ichishkiin Linguistics.

Language classes

Chinuk Wawa	Choctaw
Ichishkiin	Lushootseed
Tolowa Dee-ni'	Nez Perce

Survey of Teaching Methods

This class will offer an overview of recent language teaching methods and apply them to language revitalization environments.

Teaching Focus Class

We will offer three applied teaching methods courses based on the age and context of your learners:

- Home Based Teaching and Learning
- Classroom: Early Childhood & Elementary
- Classroom: Middle School through Adult.

Materials Development

This class aids the process of teaching and learning language. Students will create an original, activity based teaching tool. We're offering 2 classes to accommodate skill levels.

Language Activism Seminar

In this class we examine ways indigenous communities carry out their language revitalization work to discover how we as individuals and collectively can become a more effective voice for language revitalization in our own lives and communities.

Youth Program

In a cohort, youth study language, linguistics and teaching methods and design and create activities to support learning.

If your community would like to send youth to the Summer Institute, please contact us!
