

High Desert Linguistics
Society

Language and Linguistics in a fast- changing world

NOVEMBER 11TH -13TH, 2022

US Route 550 with Sandia Mountains/flickr.com

Call for papers

The 15th biennial High Desert Linguistics Society Conference will take place from Friday, November 11th, through Sunday, November 13th, 2022. All presentations will be hybrid: in-person presentations will be held at UNM and live streamed over Zoom.

The theme of the conference will be "Language and Linguistics in a fast-changing world". We welcome submissions directly related to this topic, as well as all work related to:

- cognitive linguistics
- functional linguistics
- typology
- sociolinguistics
- and related fields such as anthropology, psychology, sociology, education, and computer science

Keynotes

We are honored to be able to announce our keynote speakers:

- Corrine Occhino (Syracuse University)
- Mary Hermes (University of Minnesota)
- Amalia Skilton (Cornell University)

Abstract submission

For guidelines and abstract submission follow this link easychair.org/cfp/HDLS15 or scan the code:

Hot air balloon in the sky/rawpixel.com

 @HDLSUNM

 unm.edu/~hdls/

 hdls@unm.edu